

LLANELLI

The club began the 2008–09 season at their historic home ground of Stradey Park in Llanelli, but moved in November 2008 to the new Parc y Scarlet's in adjacent Pemberton. Sosban Fach (Welsh for "little saucepan") is a nickname of Llanelli RFC; "Sosban Fach" is the name of a Welsh song, which is sometimes

In 1884 Llanelli played an Irish XV who stopped off in the town having played Wales in Cardiff a couple of days previously. It was in this match that the team played in a scarlet color shirt which has remained the club's first color ever since, and which also led to the club's nickname "The Scarlet's" and the name of the regional team (Scarlet's) nearly 120 years later. Their first major trophies came in 1884 and 1886 when the South Wales Challenge Cup, the forerunner to the modern Welsh Cup. December 1888 saw the team beat a touring New Zealand
